INDIANA GUARDSMEN ENDING EXERCISES

PLAN LIVE FIRE EXERCISES

Ohio's 37th Division Here This Weekend

Ohio's more than 8,000 members of the 37th Infantry Division will pour into Camp Grayling this weekend, Aug. 12-13, to begin two weeks of intensive training.

It is the second year in a row that the Buckeye State National Guardsmen have trained at the local military reservation. The 37th is also one of only a few units in the Second Army to train outside the Army Area. (Michigan is in the Fifth Army Area.)

For the first time in peace, division infantrymen will conduct "live" firing platoon exercises during the two-week stay at Camp Grayling.

The training program, announced this week by commanding General Loren G. Windom, will provide infantry platoons with their toughest test since return from World War II and Korean combat days.

"The big difference between the training of the 37th this year and other similar units will be the live fire platoon testing of ALL weapons — Infantry, armor and artillery," Windom said.

"Today's modern infantry battle group is more mobile and must be trained to act on its own in platoon sized units at a minutes notice. Our training is designed to prepare the 37th today for any type of conflict which may develop tomorrow," the commander asserted. He added:

"Field training has always been serious business to us, but this year it takes on even greater significance in light of world events. Our goal is to have the best trained division in the reserve components and this means taking advantage of every training facility at our disposal."

Describing the new tests, Lt. Col. Robert H. Canterbury, division training officer, said:

"As an infantry platoon (about 40 men) advances along a road, it will be attacked from the flank. It will disperse into two parts and attack the simulated enemy position containing body-shaped targets. Each unit will be scored on the number of targets hit as well as the manner in which they execute maneuvers."

Previously live rounds were only fired at fixed targets on ranges.

Division officials stated the last time their units trained as they are this year was during 1952 while on active duty at Camp Polk, La.

The 8,871-man division comes from 64 Ohio cities and villages. Last year, on the division's first trip to Grayling, there was a number of favorable comments about the camp and the wonderful attitude of the Michigan residents. The weather also seemed to fit the Ohioans to a tee.

Illnesses and men reporting for the morning sick calls dropped to an almost unbelievable low.

For several years the Bear Archery Company of Grayling, Mich., has wanted to extend some form of recognition to the individual most responsible for successfully managing the very first National Field Archery Tournament. Back in 1946 Doug Nash was secretary of the Chamber of Commerce in Allegan, Michigan. The NFAA asked him to take on the job of directing the tournament in that locality. It was a tough undertaking, with no precedent to follow. Doug worked overtime in planning and layouts, in obtaining permits and coordinating local support, and in setting up accommodations for the participating archers who gathered from all sections of the country.

He did a masterful job in making that first National meet a complete success, as attested to by the fact that it has continued to thrive and grow through the ensuing years.

Doug, like most hard workers, is both modest and hard to get hold of. Added to this is the fact that he left Michigan some time ago to take the position of secretary of the Chamber of Commerce in Logansport, Indiana, where he now resides.

Finally, however, the chance came. Doug had made back in Michigan to try for the wily brown trout which reside in the famous Ausable River. Two of his old friends, Fred Bear of the Bear Archery Company and Bob Hayes of the Crawford County Chamber of Commerce, came upon Doug in the river, cornered him, and dragged him back to town. While Doug was still in his fisherman's informal presentation, they made by Fred Bear of a trophy bow and arrow wall plaque with a suitably inscribed bronze plate.

The plate reads as follows: "Presented to Doug Nash in recognition of his efforts and devotion in managing the first National Field Archery Tournament, Allegan, Michigan — 1946."

Area School Boards Meet At Fairview

County boards of education members and their superintendents from twenty-two northern Michigan lower peninsula counties met in the Fairview High School, August 2, 1951. The meeting was under the direction of past-president Dr. L. C. Sweet and Superintendent of Arenac County, Dr. Alfred Campbell.

Following a short business meeting in which Dr. Max C. Kelsey and Supt. Basil Goodhold of Roscommon County were installed as 1951-1952 officers and Mr. Barlick and Supt. June Finch of Oscoda County were selected as officers for the 1952-1953 year, the evening was devoted to the study of school problems in today's world.

Highlight of the evening was the presentation of Mr. Eugene Perry, Director of Civic Affairs of Dow Chemical of Midland, who gave a businessmen's look at the educator.

Among the views expressed by Mr. Perry were that schools, under the influence of the total social picture, were in danger of falling into a pattern of mediocrity in which security is extolled over opportunity and that federal aid to education is in reality defunct taxation to aid education.

He called on educators to do more than their share for children and not to settle for mediocrity.

Letters To The Editor

To the editor and the citizens of Grayling:

What has happened to baseball? I, as a former citizen of Grayling, happened to be where a little league baseball meeting was supposed to take place on July 26. Supposed to be, right?

There were five well-meaning citizens who were trying to organize a little league baseball in Grayling, and two, yes, two people who care a little bit about their children who came to this meeting.

What has happened to baseball? What has happened to the people of Grayling? I can remember when it was an honor to be a member of the baseball team, but now it seems to be a chore even to come out and see if a little league can be started.

What has happened to baseball? I can remember when we had baseball teams that were as good as any north of Bay City. I haven't even found name from Grayling listed in the top four or five finalists at the State Track Championships.

In talking to a good many people in Grayling, I have found that they want little league baseball, but, it appears that it will take a little money to get started and that is what the people are holding on to.

A few of our local businessmen, a representative of the Avalanche, plus a good many local residents should have attended this meeting but they were conspicuous by their absence. It is a disgrace to the community to have only two people representing the thinking of more than 2,000 minds. Grayling built a recreational area and included a lighted softball field. What an opportunity! A possible usage of 10 hours or more a day. But, all effort was dropped right there. Nothing was planned or organized to use this facility.

You can be proud of your golf, card playing, bowling, hunting and fishing, etc. but the children of Grayling are being forgotten and your donations to the recreation area are slowly being washed away.

Sincerely,
Bob LaChapelle

Thirty-Five Thousand Michigan Citizens In Need Of Much Care

THIRTY-FIVE THOUSAND Michigan citizens need all the help they can get.

They are the mentally ill men and women in the state's institutions where care is given to persons with problems ranging from major personality deviations to complete dissociation from reality.

Michigan will spend $76 million in the current fiscal year, which started July 1, to take care of mental health needs.

Tragically, all of the mental patients in the state don't get the kind of care they should. The Mental Health Department is handicapped by what it terms an unrealistic budget.

Legislators determined that $76 million was the proper amount and suggested administrative belt tightening so that the department could live within its appropriation. Mental Health was the only field which claimed it was short-changed by the appropriating committees of the Legislature.

Politicians are divided on the appropriations question with some saying nobody got enough, others saying the need is for economy in government instead of more money.

A third group saying that it would have been wise to increase the operating money in at least some areas of government.

Politicians are not so divided when it comes to pressure to keep taxes down. The cause of the plague in 1834 was as common then as inside plumbing is now: open air drains wherein ran all manner of pollution.

The open drains of Detroit in that era would be enough to make the present day Water Resources Commission throw a fit.

But the deadly germ that killed the people of Detroit well over a century and a quarter ago was at least partly responsible for today's modern sewage systems. After the plague hit a second time, the open drains in Detroit were ordered closed over. Piped sewage systems were here to stay.

IF THE LEGENDARY Paul Bunyan were alive today, he'd have some organized competition.

In addition to the 35,000 institutional mental patients in Michigan, another 4,000 are convalescents either at home or somewhere else where they can be handled on an out-patient basis, another 2,300 or so are awaiting treatment and about 200 inmates at Southern Michigan Prison, Jackson, have been called dangerous psychotics.

Keep in mind that these figures represent only the mental cases under the auspices of the state, not private hospitals and sanatoriums.

Because of overcrowding, inadequate staff and lack of money, the patients already being treated are unable to get the competent, professional care they need and the backlog of patients waiting for admission continues to grow.

Of all the areas of state government activity, the care of mental patients should be among those getting top priority, simply because people with mental problems need help so badly.

PLAGUE! THE WORD which strikes terror in many countries of the world means little to most Michigan residents.

But "plague" of a sort, Cholera, swept the primitive frontier town of Detroit in 1834 and estimates are that one-eighth of all people living in what was later to become the Motor City of the United States died of that plague that summer.

Even the territorial governor, George E. Porter, was felled by the sickness and died.

It all seems remote in these days of alert public health officials, sanitary living and wonder drugs. The cause of the plague in 1834 was as common then as inside plumbing is now: open air drains wherein ran all manner of pollution.

The open drains of Detroit in that era would be enough to make the present day Water Resources Commission throw a fit.

But the deadly germ that killed the people of Detroit well over a century and a quarter ago was at least partly responsible for today's modern sewage systems. After the plague hit a second time, the open drains in Detroit were ordered closed over. Piped sewage systems were here to stay.

IF THE LEGENDARY Paul Bunyan were alive today, he'd have some organized competition.

In addition to the 35,000 institutional mental patients in Michigan, another 4,000 are convalescents either at home or somewhere else where they can be handled on an out-patient basis, another 2,300 or so are awaiting from the State Highway Department.

While the road builders aren't serious lumbermen, they do make use of the trees that have to be cut when clearing right of way. Not for the old "curbroad" roads might have been done in times past.

Today's highway builders simply saw the logs up into cones, cut lengths and sell them to anybody who will buy.

There is not a great deal of lumbering done in the course of road building, but enough so that a single project earlier this year netted the Department nearly $4,000.

That one sale consisted of some 86,000 board feet of logs cut into 12, 14 and 16 foot lengths. Present-day Paul Bunyans will want to know that the trees cut to produce the logs were Sugar Maple, Basswood, Hemlock, Yellow Birch, Black Ash and Elm.

MICHIGAN IS GOOD ROADS
Michigan's highway system—the finest in the nation—is a magnet that attracts industry. The people of Michigan are determined to maintain the state's highway leadership. Our current roadbuilding program is moving ahead at a rate nearly twice that of the national average. Since 1957 Michigan's freeways have multiplied five times. These freeways are of great importance to national and international industry in the efficient movement of raw materials to the plant and finished goods to the customer.
Under present plans there soon will be four-lane divided highways to all Michigan cities of 50,000 population or more—freeways that will serve industry in planned industrial districts, adjacent or close by freeways that will serve this industry quickly, safely and cheaply.
Help carry Michigan's message to the nation. Clip this ad and mail it to someone in another state with your own comment. Let's talk up Michigan and its advantages for industry. Together, we can assure a greater future for all of us.
MICHIGAN IS EVERYTHING FOR INDUSTRY

The Other "Peace Corps" . . .

Communist rulers are sold on the idea that the total state can best organize social and material progress. Fired with dedication, they are aggressively and successfully selling Communism in vast areas of the world where corruption and poverty drive people to desperation. The threat of military force encourages the uncommitted to listen, and discourages others from interfering.

A recent editorial in Life magazine expressed the opinion that, "The climax of the struggle with Communism will come—soon. It has begun, and it is probable that in the present decade we shall either have negotiated our own surrender or Communism will have become a disrupted discredited and disintegrating force. The time has come then for the United States to take its stand—unambiguously and implacably."

Military force is only part of the answer—barring miscalculation by one side or the other it may never be used. The United States, as the most powerful Western Nation, has to fill the role of senior salesman—offering ideas and practical action in a direct hard-hitting attack on the problems which people face.

American enterprise, in the normal course of commercial development, has brought tangible advances to many of the world's underdeveloped areas.

A recent issue of U. S. News & World Report reviews achievements of private enterprise abroad. It tells the story of nine companies, whose operations span South America, Africa and Asia. It says: "Working largely through local people, these companies have expanded from small beginnings into giant enterprises in their adopted areas. In the process they raised local living standards, helped to combat disease and illiteracy, created reservoirs of trained people. In short, they have done and are still doing many of the things that the new Peace Corps hopes to do."

"Altogether, more than 3,000 U. S. firms now operate abroad. They have added more than 42 billion dollars' worth of capital equipment to the basic wealth of their host countries."

"They add up to a 'Peace Corps' that often has been more effective than U. S. Government aid, and far more impressive than any Russian aid." American companies overseas take U. S. know-how with them, presently employ more than 2 million people of whom fewer than 20,000 are from the United States. They pay $7 billion a year in wages and about $4½ billion in local taxes.

In concluding, U. S. News observes that "Russia has nothing to match this private 'Peace Corps' of business firms, as they bring new wealth and social progress to remote areas."

Every American and our own government should be proud of the strength and accomplishments of our private enterprise system. The American people must understand that government can offer no individual security which they do not first pay for themselves. It can offer no safety from the drive of world Communism unless it is backed by a majority of the American people, who take pride in their political heritage and have confidence in the free economic institutions which built this country and give us our strength.

America needs no apology and does not need to become a welfare state. But she does need a new spiritual force to match the Communist challenge—a new confidence and determination to sell the greatest gift she has; economic, social and political progress based on individual freedom and opportunity.

August 11, 1938

Deadhead logs, residue of Michigan's once-great lumbering industry, presented the state conservation department with a problem today. Sportsmen who fish in the Ausable and Manistee rivers in Crawford and Osceola counties have complained that removal of logs, some of which have been submerged for 50 years but still are in good condition, affects fishing seriously. Fred A. Westerman, Fisheries Division chief said he preferred that the logs be left undisturbed but recognized rights of those who originally owned or acquired the titles to them. It was estimated that at least 4,000,000 board feet of pine logs were sunk in the Manistee River in Crawford County.

A. S. Hazzard, director of the University of Michigan Institute for Fisheries Research recommended that the state either acquire a title to the logs, which courts have ruled still belong to original owners whose marks they bear, or closely supervise removal.

Michigan Is Good Roads — Michigan's $2 billion highway construction and modernization program will have a profound impact on the lives of Michigan residents and more industrial opportunities in Michigan for the next 25 years.

Michigan's $2 billion highway construction and modernization program will have a profound impact on the lives of Michigan residents and more industrial opportunities in Michigan for the next 25 years.

Construction of more than 1,000 miles of freeway — all of which will be opened to traffic by early 1963 — will play a major role in Michigan's industrial expansion in the years ahead.

Industry is always looking for sites with good transportation nearby. These freeways will not only help bring new industry to the State but also will help industry already here.

State Highway Department studies show the 203-mile Interstate 94 Freeway from Detroit to Benton Harbor area — the nation's longest toll-free Interstate highway — already is saving Michigan industry millions of dollars a year in transportation costs.

Interstate 94 and the other freeways that will criss-cross the state will have a tremendous impact on Michigan's future economic growth.

"By the end of next year, Interstate 96 Freeway will be opened to traffic between Detroit and Muskegon is on the move. The Mackinac Bridge Freeway will be in use, too.

"It is difficult to imagine the total economic and social impact which these new highways will have on our State within five years. They will attract over $1 million in new business and industry for every mile of freeway built and will channel economic growth for the next 25 years.

Michigan is on the move. Our road building program is designed to help the State meet the challenges of the 1960's. New highways will play a major role in opening up new economic and social frontiers."

Letters To The Editor

July 24, 1961
Mr. Robert W. Strong, Editor
Crawford County Avalanche
Grayling, Michigan
Dear Mr. Strong:

I am soliciting the assistance of all newspaper editors in Michigan to facilitate state-wide manuscript collecting. Here at the Michigan State University Museum we are engaged in collecting and preserving manuscripts and artifacts which will provide for a research center of unestimable value for both students and the general public. In order to stimulate more interest and publicize our functions we earnestly seek your help.

We request that you consider publishing our appeal to your reading public for any manuscripts which individuals might have in their possession. Primarily we are interested in letters, diaries, ledgers, record books of all kinds, land deeds, store accounts, etc. Often family collections, which include these manuscripts, have great historical value and are reposing in some forgotten attic, vacant house, or dark basement. We are attempting to obtain such material so we may preserve it for posterity in fireproof, dry-storage space, and after proper cataloging, make it available to students, scholars and the general public. In this way, public interest and scholarly knowledge both would be advanced, and the donor left with a feeling of pride in having made an educational contribution. Undoubtedly the people of this state have a deep, personal interest in their history and would respond wholeheartedly rather than see valuable records ultimately lost.

People who have manuscripts that they might wish to donate or information regarding the same could contact us here at the Museum. We will arrange to visit them at their convenience and discuss the matter. Also any correspondence from interested persons will be welcome regardless of whether or not they have manuscripts as often information is equally as valuable.

Since newspaper editors always serve as important contacts we ask that you kindly furnish us with any information you might obtain concerning manuscripts or related items. We also invite suggestions or recommendations that you might have to aid us. We would be most happy to answer any inquiry or provide more in the way of explanation. We greatly appreciate your cooperation in this matter. Sincerely yours, Marvin B. Cain, Curator of History.

Permit Money

none of these revenues can be used to cover the normal house-keeping costs of state parks. This means, of course, that permit buyers are not paying for what they already have, but rather for things they need.

Permit buyers will start reaping

ing actual dividends from their fees within a matter of weeks, according to present plans. The first series of bonds, totaling $2,000,000, is scheduled to be sold at the Conservation Commission's August meeting. This will provide funds needed to buy nearly 1,000 acres already approved for purchase by the Commission, including 380 acres at two new parks.

The new sites are P. J. Hoffmaster state park on Lake Michigan which straddles the Muskegon-Ottawa County line and Pe-toskey state park in Emmet County on Little Traverse Bay.

Next month's bond sale will also trigger construction work scheduled to begin in September which will result in some 1,300 new campsites, 35 miles of road improvements, and facilities for an additional 3,100 daily visitors and 1,750 bathes at one time.

Over a season, these improvements will take care of 50,000 camping groups now being turned away annually for lack of space and provide for approximately 200,000 additional daily visitors each year.

Michigan's permit-bonding program is moving ahead briskly in another all-important area. Receipts from parks permit sales totaled $278,000 through June, more than double the amount required to pay the first year's obligation and interest on the opening bond issue of $2,000,000.

Additional bonds will be issued serially, covering the remaining $3,000,000 segment of the bonding program, as funds are needed to carry out plans.

INDEPENDENCE DAY
WHEN the children of Israel made their way out of Egypt, they were bidden to observe through the ages the birthday of their nation in the feast of the Passover. Other races have had their sacred days that commemorated some great event in their history.

JUST A THOUGHT:
The achievement of fame and wealth is well worth the striving for—if we tackle the project in such a manner that we are always able to look ourselves straight in the eye. Regardless of what the world may think of us, we always see ourselves as we really are, not what we are striving to be.

Thus when the Thirteen Colonies declared and made good the Declaration of Independence from Great Britain, there began a celebration that made July the Fourth a sacred day in our history. When, after forty years, the fugitives from Egypt crossed the River-Jordan, a pile of stones was set at the place and the people were bidden to answer any who inquired as to the meaning of the stones that they were a memorial of God's providence over them from the Red Sea to Jordan. Now, when wars and rumors of wars disturb our land and all the lands of earth, let us set in our midst the stone of Independence, as God set in the presence of the terrible Philistines, saying, "The Lord hath the Lord helped us."
